

Ways to Make an Ordinary Evening Romantic

Put on a playlist of songs that mean something to both of you (e.g., a song you like to slow-dance to, a song from your first date).

Use candles or fairy lights to change the mood in a room almost instantly.

Pick a recipe from a different cuisine than what you're normally used to and cook it together while talking about your day.

Slow-dance to your song in the kitchen while dinner simmers.

Set the dining table like it's a special occasion.

At the dinner table, talk about your dreams for the year and things you want to do together.

Share a dessert you both love.

After dinner, go for a walk together or watch the sunset or stargaze from the backyard if possible.

Surprise each other with a small gift or a sweet note.

Look through your photos together from this year and decide on your favorite. Get it printed and framed.

Make a short bucket list of things you want to do together this season.

Plan a dream vacation, even if it's just for fun.
